

”Going Green Environmental Friday”
at Venado Middle School

CLEAN was invited to lead special educational sessions at Venado Middle School’s “Going Green Environmental Friday”, an Earth Day celebration. Small groups of students participated in the half-hour sessions which focused on global climate change. Each session was based around a presentation given by CLEAN that taught the students the scientific basics of climate change from the carbon cycle to the potential for humans to affect climate to possible effects of warming around the globe. Particular attention was paid to potential solutions and immediate actions the students themselves could take. The presentation sparked lots of questions from the students and led to fantastic discussions on a wide variety of topics ranging from canvas grocery bags to rising sea levels (and the Lost City of Atlantis!).
